

June 10

I am currently procrastinating.
You know why?

Exams.

Even with the teachers strike we have them. My first one is tomorrow morning. Biologie then Français. I just have no motivation even though I know I should, you know, to get good grades and pass. But I can't do it. My exam binder is sitting next to me, a few Q-cards from a previous test as well. I managed to take the clip off read the front of one card but not the back, flip through the next few, then put the clip back on.

What's the point of final exams? It only really tests your memorisation skill. Unless it's French or English, cause then you need to read and write. But Biologie, I just need to memorise a lot of terms like the family tree of certain bacterias and trees. It's all real boring and everything tends to get mixed up in your head.

It's soo boring.

I have six exams: English, French, Bio, Math, Online class and History.

Why can't they just cancel them because of the strike?

Well I really should get to studying.

I will try..

Love

Samantha ♡
