

Enclosed is my monthly letter. I think I am on Sept.
So this is my Sept letter. If I am wrong please let me know

-Sam

Hi Bill,

Sept 23rd

It is very late, but I am late on my letters so I thought I would do this right before bed.

The past couple months have been BUSY.

I guess it was mostly the middle/end of August that was busy. Let's go through it. August 10th was my birthday and mom came to town. We headed on that road trip the next day to Hell's Gate. Our stops included Bridal

Veil falls, then Hope, the Landslide, Vale,

Spuzzum, The Alexandra Bridge, then Hell's Gate.

It was a really hot day. It wasn't too smokey considering the fires, it was denser in some areas than others. But our walk to the Bridge and at Hell's Gate was so hot and and humid. We also covered ~~it~~ hope, which we didn't on our original trip across Canada. I can't remember which day that weekend mom left.

But on Monday the 14th, Matthew and I took a day trip down to Bellingham. We walked around the shops, and got some fun American food. The next day after work I was on a flight to Montreal for Rendez-vous. You've heard all about that trip, thanks again for letting us take over your house and use the car.

Upper Canada Village was a success. This past

Sunday (the 17th) we talked about the Conference at Church. You can probably find the recording online.

Once our fun week was over, I had a few days at work before heading to Rendezvous Island with Mathew for your party. I loved how laid-back it was and that people were free to do their own things. It was also a BEAUTIFUL location. Too bad we didn't see any orcas. Going to Pender meant Mom and I missed the Saanich fair though so that was a bummer. It was a bit of a tradition I guess. We wouldn't go for the rides, just for all the stuff to see. And then it was back to school. But more about that in my next letter. By the time you get this, you should be here, at the suite, returned from your road-trip with Fran and John. Fingers are crossed that it doesn't break down.

Love Samantha
