

Hi Bill,

Dec 3

It's exam season again. That also means that all the projects were due. I can't remember if I talked about it already, but for my group marketing project I ditched my group because I couldn't get them to work. Update, the day the project was due, they started a google doc to have it done by that evening 11:59pm.

I have enclosed my project. Overall I think I did pretty well for it being my first marketing project ever and me having to do it alone (with mom's help of course). We worked on it the weekend she was here to watch Cirque du Soleil with me. She reserved the ferry to go home monday, but all morning the ferries were cancelled due to wind. Including the one she reserved. She decided the wait would be too long so she stayed a whole other night.

This week is exam week and I have three, so looking forward to that

Can't wait to see you both

Love
Samantha ♡
2020