

Hi Bill,

March 17th

This letter is coming to you from the comfort of my home in the middle of the day. The office has been closed, and we've been told to work remotely until further notice. I'm grateful I have the option to work from home. A lot of other people don't have that option, and are getting laid off or just not getting work. So I'm glad I can work from home.

How are you both handling it? I talked to Denise & Reg and they have said they're stuck inside for the foreseeable future. I bet with your compromised immune system you're not going out much.

We cancelled an event that was supposed to go on this weekend. It's so weird. I was driving around the other day and it just felt like another day, then you get home, turn on the news, and the virus is all they talk about.

My main worry is getting outside and being active. I guess I'll have to go to a secluded area to get my walking in.

On another note, I've been doing reorganizing of the suite. We need it to work for two of us, so there's been reorganizing and moving things to the crawl space. You'll have to see once you get here.

Stay Safe.

Love

Samantha
